Option 1:

Create a map for the setting of the book. Include key locations from the story. Next to each location, write a brief annotation of what happened there. Include at least five annotations, all of which must reflect the parts of the book you found the most interesting. The theme of the map should match the themes of the book. Maps should be created on 11 x 13" poster board. Please adhere to the size. Neatness and presentation count.

Option 2:

Create a marketing poster for the book. Include an illustration, title, author, main characters, and at least five elements of the book that will get people to want to read that particular book. The five elements should reflect the parts of the book you found the most interesting. Posters should be created on 11 x 13" poster board. Please adhere to the size. Neatness and presentation count.

Option 3:

Create a newspaper front page about the book. Include at least four "stories" of events from the book as well as pictures or illustrations that reflect the parts that were most interesting to you. The newspaper should be created on 11 x 13" poster board. Please adhere to the size. Neatness and presentation count.
